Narrative essay

It is a personal piece of writing in which you explain the story that wants to tell your readers. It is written like a story and you can be creative and non-fiction too sometimes. Now, they are like storytelling but they have a simple essay structure like introduction, 3 body paragraphs, and conclusion.

Now, you will definitely be wondering what makes a narrative essay different from a descriptive essay?

So, the answer is very simple as the descriptions are written in formal writing and are informative. While in the narrative style, you write the essay in the form of a story and you can be more informal and can use embellishments in writing. If you still do not understand the difference, then you can get sample essays from an online essay writer website. They can provide you with well-written samples that will make you understand the difference in detail.

Expository Essays

In this essay type, you have to take one simple theme or main idea and then discuss it from different angles and perspectives in the body paragraphs. To talk about your theme in detail, you will take evidence from the texts, primary or secondary resources. The structure of this essay type is similar to the other essays, for example, the introduction, body paragraphs, and the conclusion.

The topics examples for the expository essays are

- Why are young people vulnerable to depression?
- Why are women battling against patriarchy?
- Child labor is the product of capitalism
- How can humans measure happiness?
- What is the impact of music on the human mind?

Analytical essays

In this academic essay, the students have to analyze a piece of writing, movie, music, or ted talks and they analyze multiple elements of the text one by one. It is not about convincing the readers but making them understand the text.

However, in this essay, your language needs to be critical and not very persuasive or descriptive. If you will ask me how I will write my essay in 1 hour, then I will bring it into the analysis in a more critical language. So, you do not need to be argumentative or persuasive but use your analytical skills.

All the essay types are different as there can be a close resemblance in structure but they are written in a different language and argument styles. So, once you are done with knowing the essay type, you have more chances of getting good grades because, in the academic field, you get more essays than objective papers.
